1.4 Delegation:

- The authorized individual may delegate certain authorities to lower organizational levels; however, such delegation does not absolve the delegator from overall responsibility.

2.4 Unlisted Authorities:

- Authorities not explicitly covered in this manual, which arise during the course of business, shall be addressed according to the risk level involved by applying the procedure most closely aligned with the nature of the transaction in this manual, in coordination with the Chief Executive Officer (CEO).
- If the unlisted authorities involve operational or financial risks, the matter shall be referred to the Investment Committee for a decision, following a recommendation from the Audit Committee.

- This manual shall be updated promptly upon recurring identification of any unlisted authorities.

3.4 General Provisions:

- Authority is granted to the responsible person in accordance with the nature and scope of the responsibilities assigned to them, enabling them to perform their duties optimally. Each responsibility requires delegation of authority to empower the person to fully carry it out, and each authority entails the responsibility of exercising it correctly.
- The authority matrix serves as an effective tool to organize workflow, setting clear limits and hierarchy of powers. Therefore, all company officials at various levels must adhere strictly to these delegated authorities.
- Authorities are directly and explicitly linked to job positions and may only be exercised by individuals officially appointed to these positions.
- An authorized person shall not use their authority for personal gain or decisions related to themselves; in such cases, the authority reverts to the immediate superior, except for matters related to salaries and allowances.
- In the absence of the authorized person, the authority automatically reverts to the immediate superior. The superior may delegate the absent person's authorities to one of their assistants upon approval.
- When authority is granted to two administrative levels, the lower level may only sign in the absence of the higher level.
- The lower administrative level is not permitted to exercise the authority of the higher level during the absence of the original authority holder unless a written delegation from the original authority holder is provided.
- Limits of authority specified in this manual may be amended as required by business needs, subject to the approval of the Board of Directors before implementation.
- The currency referenced in the authority matrix is the Saudi Riyal or its equivalent in other currencies based on the exchange rate on the transaction date.
- Authorities must not be fragmented (e.g., contracts, payments, etc.) in any manner to avoid approvals being obtained from unauthorized persons.
