Section One: Succession Planning / Job Replacement

1.1 Purpose

The purpose of establishing a Succession (Replacement) Plan is to hedge against potential future events that may affect any of the Company's employees or departments, and to identify an alternative individual who can assume the position or act on behalf of the position holder in their absence for any reason. This includes defining the tasks, roles, and job responsibilities.
Succession planning is essential to ensure business continuity and maintain employee satisfaction by preparing and developing potential employees, enhancing their advancement opportunities, and enabling them to smoothly assume higher technical and professional positions when necessary. It also serves to clarify the scope of work for each unit at all approved and documented management levels, ensuring that no position remains vacant.
In cases where no suitable internal replacement can be identified, the current position holder shall be required to outline the specifications of a suitable replacement so that a candidate can be sought externally.

1.2 Objectives

- Reduce risk by minimizing reliance on key employees.
- Ensure continuity of operations and smooth transitions when positions are vacated.
- Align training and development activities with the career paths of identified high-potential employees.
- Enhance employee motivation and commitment.
- Prevent issues that may arise during transitional phases and avoid loss of continuity when positions are vacated. 1.3 Approval
- This document shall be approved by the Chief Executive Officer (CEO) and the Managing Director and Board Member of the Company.
